USDA RURAL DEVELOPMENT AWARDS $500,000 FOR THE DISTANCE LEARNING AND TELEMEDICINE PROGRAM

Temple, Texas, September 30, 2003—Bryan Daniel, State Director, for Texas USDA Rural Development today announced the selection of the Newton Economic Development Corporation as a recipient of the Distance Learning and Telemedicine (DLT) Grant program.

The DLT funds will be used to assist Newton Economic Development Corporation establish a two-way video classroom at the Sky Ranch Rural Entrepreneurship Center (REC) site. The primary mode of delivery of distance learning content will be via web-based instruction. The goal of this project is to develop a grassroots network of stakeholders in participating counties to recruit their peers to take advantage of the investments of educational and service providers who have already invested in distance learning networks and resources.

“Everyone who has played a role in extending telecommunications service to rural Texans should be very proud of what has been accomplished,” said Bryan Daniel, State Director. “The communication lines you help build and maintain are truly the life lines of the nation’s rural heartland.”

In total, 57 distance education grants for $23.5 million, and 27 telemedicine grants for more than $8.9 million were selected for funding. The education projects will help 556 schools provide students with educational tools to better equip them for the global digital economy. Additionally, rural residents will have access to better, faster, and more modern health care through 190 medical service facilities. A complete list of the selected grant recipients can be found at the USDA Rural Development web site at: <http://www.rurdev.usda.gov>.

USDA’s Rural Utilities Service administers the Distance Learning and Telemedicine program. USDA Rural Development serves as the lead federal entity for rural development needs, and administers program assistance through three agencies: Rural Housing Service, Rural Business-Cooperative Service, and Rural Utilities Service.
